TWO SERIOUSLY HURT IN WRECK NEAR KINGSTON

Embedded Bolt Taken From Face Of Charles Search, Pickaway Township

MAN STILL UNCONSCIOUS

Walter Polen, 19, Suffering From Crushed Chest; Car And Truck Collide

Two young men, one a Pickaway countian, suffered severe injuries Thursday at 9:45 p. m. in an auto and truck collision at the crest of Holman Hill on Blackwater road, three miles southwest of Kingston.

Charles Search, 24, of Pickaway Township, the auto driver, was still unconscious Friday in Chillicothe Hospital. He has a badly lacerated face due to a two inch bolt being embedded in his face, a dislocated hip and a fractured pelvis. Walter Polen, 19, of Kingston, riding in the auto was reported in a fair condition. He was unconscious when admitted but has regained consciousness. He suffered a crushed chest and minor abrasions about the body, arms and legs.

Nolan Carmean, of the Kingston Pike near Kinnikinnick, driver of the truck, escaped with a minor injury to his right leg which did not require treatment.

Both Swing Cars

Carmean said that as he drove up the hill he was suddenly confronted with the headlights of an oncoming car. Both drivers swung to the right but the left fronts of the vehicles collided.

Mr. Carmean was momentarily stunned but he got out and tried to prevent Polen from wandering from the scene of the accident. Polen, dazed by his injuries, walked two miles to the residence of Wilbert Graves. Mr. Carmean summoned help. The men were first taken to the office of Dr. R. E. Lightner, in Kingston, then to the hospital.

Search is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Search who reside on the Ed May property near Kingston. He is employed at the Jess Brundage elevator in Kingston. Polen is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Nancy Polen of Kingston. He works at the Yapple and Hassenpflug grocery.

POLICE HUNTING PERSONS FEARED ON BURNED BOAT

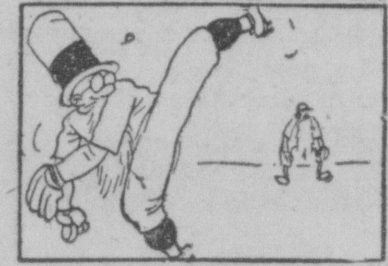

SANDUSKY, Oct. 6.—Coast-guardsmen at Marblehead Station and Sandusky police were attempting to determine today whether any lives were lost when a 30-foot cruiser caught fire and exploded off Sand Point last night.

Charles Zelms of Johnson's Island said the boat caught fire shortly after leaving Sandusky and before he could reach it in a rowboat it exploded and sank.

A flame-seared gasoline tank and timbers were washed ashore on Catawba Island and officials were attempting to identify the missing operator through these pieces of wreckage.

Sandusky boathouses were being checked in an effort to learn how many were on board the craft besides the pilot.

U. S. Vessels Rush to Meet 'Marked' Ship REDS, YANKEES REST FOR THIRD CONTEST

Weatherman Offers Generally Fair Prediction

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—The vanguard of an expected crowd of 35,000 fans converged on gloomy Cincinnati today for the opening home game of the 1939 World Series between the New York Yankees and the National League Reds tomorrow.

Both teams arrived from New York at 9 a. m. for a day of rest and relaxation before resuming the classic.

The town was not in the gay and optimistic mood that was so apparent even 24 hours ago. In the light of these facts, what fan could feel cheerful?

The Reds' star pitchers, Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer, had been beaten in the first two games. And the boys who had been slugging all season just couldn't hit against the American League champions. All Cincinnati got was six hits in two games.

And that's why usually happy Cincinnati seemed a bit gloomy on the eve of the third series game. That's why no one seemed to care whether there really would be a parade and celebration as the team returned.

However, the weather man did try to cheer up the citizens with a prediction of generally fair weather today and tomorrow. And officials at Crosley Field reiterated that the stadium would be filled to capacity—35,000—including 4,500 standing room accommodations.

And you could find—by looking hard—a number of fans who felt the Reds still had a chance—a slim one, but a chance.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—Undaunted by the fate of the Reds in New York, thirty-five faithful fans today continued their prolonged stand at the bleacher entrance to Crosley Field. Bleacher tickets were to go on sale today for the World Series games in Cincinnati.

First in line was Art "Happy" Felsch, Milwaukee, who has been at the stadium since September 28, the day the Reds clinched the National League crown. Felsch has been sleeping on a cot right below the ticket window. Raleigh Felsinger, Marion, Ind., arrived Sunday and Jimmy McCormick, Manchester, O., took up the vigil Monday.

BRITISH LUXURY LINER SLIPS OUT TO SEA, RETURNS

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Waterfront drama was enacted today by the British-owned luxury liner Monarch of Bermuda which slipped out to sea without advance notice and made a quick return to its berth only a short time later.

Officials of the Furness-Bermuda line, operators of the vessel, explained the brief voyage as a trip for the purpose of adjusting compasses.

Shrouded in her coat of deceptive gray paint, the Monarch of Bermuda dropped down the bay this morning and headed out to sea. Scarcely had she become lost to view, however, when she suddenly reappeared on the horizon, beating back to her New York dock.

BRITISH REPORT SINKING STEAMER BY SUBMARINE

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Sinking of the steamer Glenfarg by a German submarine was announced by the British Ministry of Information today. The crew was landed safely except for one member who died from wounds sustained in the explosion.

Claiming to be the No. 1 Cincinnati fan, Harry Thobe goes into action. He says he's followed the Reds for 45 years.

PAYROLL TAKEN MARKET SPURTS BY TWO ARMED AT OPENING, BUT OHIO OUTLAWS LOSES MARGIN

CLEVELAND, Oct. 6.—Two bandits forced Sam Savage, an auditor for the Smith-Obey Co., to surrender a $2,500 payroll today and escaped in Savage's automobile.

Savage was on his way to the Valley View housing project to pay off men employed by the company, which does plumbing and heating work.

The bandits forced him to stop his automobile and turn over the payroll. Savage, in a telephone call to his company, said the men did not injure him.

PITTMAN MOVES TO ASK BALLOT ON ARMS ISSUE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Pittman interrupted the fast pace of neutrality debate in the special session of congress today, to issue a statement reasserting his belief that no matter how the neutrality battle goes, this country will never again send its soldiers abroad to fight another nation's battles.

Observing that "interest is lagging" in the debate and adding that he will ask for a vote on the administration's Neutrality Act arms embargo repeal bill whenever opportunity presents itself, Pittman declared:

"There is one thing that I am absolutely sure of. This congress will never vote to send any American soldiers abroad in this war. I am equally sure that this congress would never appropriate money for the purpose of mobilizing, training and equipping our army."

Tigers, Greenfield to Pry Lid Off S. C. O. Grid Loop

Circleville was ready Friday to welcome Greenfield High School's football team, its band and its townspeople for the opening of Circleville High School's participation in the South Central Ohio Athletic League. Circleville Tigers and Greenfield McClain meet under the lights of school field at 8 o'clock this evening.

That the Greenfield band will be present was assured Friday when officials of the McClain school contacted Faculty Manager Virgil Cress and asked him to reserve seats for the musicians. The band is expected to parade on the field between halves. Circleville's band which has made quite a hit with its work on the field will appear, too.

The game tonight is a booster affair, proceeds going toward payment of the lighting system debt. A large crowd is anticipated. Circleville High School boys and girls took part in a rally Thursday evening, snake dancing through the streets and building a big bon fire opposite the building on Corwin Street.

P. S. How about the combined bands playing "The Star Spangled Banner" just before the kickoff tonight?

'Secret Rendezvous' At Sea Planned To Evade Attack Possibility

MOVEMENTS ARE SECRET

Raeder Hints Allies May Sink Iriquois; Athenia Incident Recalled

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 6.—President Roosevelt today found in the mysterious threat to the American liner Iriquois an excellent illustration of the need for the "neutrality patrol" he established.

Destroyers and coast guard craft from this patrol are now en route to sea to escort the liner and her capacity load of American refugees safely past threat of torpedoing by some mysterious submarine.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—American naval vessels will meet the American liner Iriquois, which Germany's naval chief warned the United States might be sunk, in a "secret rendezvous" in the Atlantic, navy department officials said today.

Citing the censorship of the department has placed on the movements of all naval vessels since the outbreak of the European war, the department refused to list the names of the vessels sent to meet the Iriquois, with 584 American refugees aboard.

Neither would the department state the time and position in the Atlantic the boats expected to meet the Iriquois and accompany it to an American port.

The position of the boats at the time they got instructions via radio to proceed under forced draft to meet the Iriquois was also withheld.

Several Craft Sent

It was understood, however, that a coast guard cutter and several naval craft, assigned to patrol duty in the North Atlantic, had been sent to meet the steamship.

Coast guard officials said they (Continued on Page Two)

FEDERAL JUDGE HITS POWER OF A. F. L. RULINGS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—In a sweeping court decision, a federal judge ruled today that the American Federation of Labor was not "the arbiter of the destiny" of unions affiliated with it.

Delivering what may be a stunning blow to the federation's power to settle interunion disputes in its own ranks. The decision was handed down by Judge T. Alan Goldsborough in the U. S. District Court in a case involving the Teamsters Union and the Brewery Workers Union, both A. F. of L. organizations.

At the same time, the ruling upset an A. F. of L. convention mandate handed down in 1933, and brought up the question whether the A. F. of L. even at its conventions, could settle by mandate interunion quarrels.

For 39 years, the teamsters, most powerful A. F. of L. group, with more than 310,000 members, and the brewery workers, have been quarreling over jurisdiction over truck drivers working in breweries.

WPA WORKER'S 'STRIKE' OF GOLD PROVES FALSE

CLEVELAND, Oct. 6.—William T. Miller, a WPA worker, thought he had struck gold when he drove his pick into soft shale while working on a leveling project at Parma. A number of bright, glistening particles came to light. Today the museum of natural history informed Miller the particles were iron pyrites, commonly known as "fool's gold."

European Bulletins

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The London Daily Express expressed belief today that the "mystery weapon" mentioned by Chancellor Hitler in his recent Danzig speech consists of special bombing planes armed with 16 machine guns each. The paper said the planes have a range of 8,000 miles and are designed to attack merchant ships and defeat the Anglo-French convoy system.

MOSCOW.—Strategic Soviet Russian domination over the eastern Baltic region was greatly enhanced today by a Russo-Latvian 10-year pact of mutual military assistance. The pact will become effective provided it is ratified by the Latvian government at Riga within six days.

LONDON.—The London Daily Mirror published an undated story today claiming that Chancellor Hitler has discontinued the entire monthly allowance of former Kaiser Wilhelm, who is in exile at Doorn, Holland.

STOCKHOLM.—Unconfirmed reports in Stockholm said today that the Moscow radio announced the refusal of Finland to send her commerce minister, V. Volonmaa, to the Soviet capital to negotiate a trade pact with Soviet Russia. Reports from Tallin said the Soviet demands on Estonia are increasing.

G. O. P. SEEKING IMMEDIATE VOTE ON RIPPER BILL

COLUMBUS, Oct. 6.—Defeated in a court battle they themselves instigated, Republican state officials moved swiftly today to expedite checking of signatures on petitions proposing a referendum on the administration's Civil Service bill.

However, the Democrats, who won their bitter fight to force Secretary of State Earl Griffith to forward the petitions to county boards of elections, contended that there was not enough time to place the issue on the November ballot.

State Democratic Chairman Arthur L. Limbach asserted that 40 days must elapse between the secretary's certification of a referendum and an election. Although Griffith ordered election boards to return the petitions by Oct. 9, only 32 days now remain before the Nov. 7 election date.

Limbach's assertion was countered by political observers as an indication that Democrats were not anxious for a vote this year, so that they might use the civil service issue in the political campaign next year. The Republicans wanted to settle the matter once and for all.

If the county boards of elections deduct enough signatures to cause a deficiency, the Democrats will be allowed 10 days to obtain additional signers.

LIQUOR CONTROL OFFICE CARRIES ON GAMING WAR

COLUMBUS, Oct. 6.—Continuing its drive against gambling and illegal possession or sale of whisky, the state liquor board today ordered 56 permit holders throughout the state to appear before it Oct. 10 and 11 to answer various charges.

Most of the alleged violations were committed in the Cleveland, Dayton and Cincinnati areas. Others listed to appear included: Verma K. Naples, Martins Ferry, charged with permitting gambling devices on the premises and illegal possession; Elias Esshoc, Lorain, illegal possession of whiskey. Both cases were set for Oct. 11.

GRAPE FETE OBSERVED

SANDUSKY, O., Oct. 6.—Sandusky residents began a three-day celebration of the grape harvest today with exhibits and attractions on the Lake Erie waterfront, a parade and selection of a beauty queen as highlights.

Fuehrer Denies Any Weakening

Limitation Of Armaments On Security Basis Stressed In Address Before Reichstag; Colonies Demanded

PARIS EXPECTS LIGHTNING STROKE

German Chancellor Predicts Hostilities In Case Of General War To Become Dreadful; Pole Division Stands

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's offer of an international peace conference met with firm and immediate rejection in the British press today, while authoritative government circles indicated there was nothing in his speech to the Reichstag likely to swerve the Allies from their determined course of action.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—With fighting on the Western Front virtually at a standstill, the French nation concentrated on two points today—Chancellor Hitler's Reichstag speech and the direction from which Germany's military blow may come if the Fuehrer's overtures are rejected.

French military circles bent their chief attention to the problem of guessing where the German "lightning" may strike, if and when it comes.

ROME, Oct. 6.—A copy of Chancellor Hitler's Reichstag speech was handed to Premier Mussolini in Rome today, a few minutes before the Reichsfuehrer began to speak in Berlin, by German Ambassador Hans Georg Von Mackensen.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Carefully avoiding the "threats" that Britain and France had predicted beyond hinting that the war in Europe might become a war of all the world, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler launched his "peace offensive" in a speech to the Reichstag today proposing an international conference and limitation of armaments to a "security basis."

Opening of full hostilities on the Western Front, he said, can only mean a loss of millions of lives, with eventual restoration of a Franco-German boundary marked not by flourishing cities but by ruined towns and "gigantic cemeteries."

He urged that guns be silenced at least long enough to allow the statesmen of Europe to meet in a sincere and far-reaching conference to settle problems of nationalities, minorities, raw materials, trade and economic matters and Germany's war-lost colonies in Africa.

The last, he said, "is the only claim that Germany has against England, and force of arms is not needed to solve this problem. Wildly cheered by his 800-odd Nazi deputies gathered in the Kroll opera house, the Fuehrer concluded with a warning to Winston Churchill and others not to interpret his true offer as "weakness or cowardice."

"But if the Churchill clique is successful (in its alleged war aims), this will be my last declaration," Hitler said.

"Thereafter we will fight, and neither force of arms nor time itself will conquer Germany."

1918 Never Repeated
"November 1918 will never be repeated. Any hopes for the disintegration of our people are childish."

"Churchill may be convinced of Britain's victory, but I have not a second's doubt of Germany's victory. Fate will decide who is right. Only one thing is certain. There have never been two victors in the world's history—only the vanquished as the last war showed. May other nations and their leaders now speak. May those who see a better solution in war than in peace now reject my offer."

The Fuehrer mentioned Italy only once, in the course of reviewing Germany's friendly relations with the nations of southern and southeastern Europe, the Baltic nations and those on the North Sea.

Poland will never be restored as she was before Germany marched in to "eliminate" an impossible situation in which 10,000 German lives were lost and no less than (Continued on Page Two)

OBERLIN COLLEGE IN DEBATE OVER 'WAR' PETITION

OBERLIN, O., Oct. 6.—A wide rift in Oberlin College faculty ranks appeared certain today after 25 instructors, professors and department heads signed a letter stating that "Borah, Coughlin, the Bund and the Communists" wanted this country to surrender to Hitler.

On Sept. 20, Dr. Ernest Hatch Wilkins, president of the famed liberal college, said that repeal of the arms embargo would cause sabotage in American industrial plants and would "enrage Germany."

The letter signed by the faculty members and published in the Oberlin Review, student newspaper, declared:

"This war seems certain to be long and bitter, but all its waste cannot be compared with the evil consequences of capitulating to Hitler."

"It is... such a surrender that Borah, Coughlin, the Bund and the Communists propose."

Leader of those signing the letter was F. B. Artz, history professor. Among the others signing were R. A. Jelliffe, novelist and head of the English department; Oscar Jaszi, head of the political science department; Marguerite Wadsworth, dean of women, and D. M. Love, secretary of the college.

BELLS FOR CHURCH PUT ON LAWN FOR DISPLAY

Three bells presented to Trinity Lutheran Church by the Rev. Jacob Barthelmas, South Court Street, retired pastor, have arrived and will be displayed in the front lawn of the church during the week end, the Rev. George L. Troutman, junior pastor of the church, announced Friday.

The bells weigh about two and a half tons. Work will be started Monday on installing the bells in the church tower. They were purchased from Menely & Company, Inc., of Watervliet, N. Y., the same firm that placed the Foreman memorial chimera on the courthouse tower in 1926.

However, the Democrats, who won their bitter fight to force Secretary of State Earl Griffith to forward the petitions to county boards of elections, contended that there was not enough time to place the issue on the November ballot.

State Democratic Chairman Arthur L. Limbach asserted that 40 days must elapse between the secretary's certification of a referendum and an election. Although Griffith ordered election boards to return the petitions by Oct. 9, only 32 days now remain before the Nov. 7 election date.

Limbach's assertion was countered by political observers as an indication that Democrats were not anxious for a vote this year, so that they might use the civil service issue in the political campaign next year. The Republicans wanted to settle the matter once and for all.

If the county boards of elections deduct enough signatures to cause a deficiency, the Democrats will be allowed 10 days to obtain additional signers.

LIQUOR CONTROL OFFICE CARRIES ON GAMING WAR

COLUMBUS, Oct. 6—Continuing its drive against gambling and illegal possession or sale of whiskey, the state liquor board today ordered 56 permit holders throughout the state to appear before it Oct. 10 and 11 to answer various charges.

Most of the alleged violations were committed in the Cleveland, Dayton and Cincinnati areas. Others listed to appear included: Yerma K. Naples, Martins Ferry, charged with permitting gambling devices on the premises and illegal possession of whiskey. Both cases were set for Oct. 11.

GRAPE FETE OBSERVED

SANDUSKY, O., Oct. 6—Sandusky residents began a three-day celebration of the grape harvest today with exhibits and attractions on the Lake Erie waterfront, a parade and selection of a beauty queen as highlights.

PARIS EXPECTS LIGHTNING STROKE

German Chancellor Predicts Hostilities In Case Of General War To Become Dreadful; Pole Division Stands

LONDON, Oct. 6—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's offer of an international peace conference met with firm and immediate rejection in the British press today, while authoritative government circles indicated there was nothing in his speech to the Reichstag likely to swerve the Allies from their determined course of action.

PARIS, Oct. 6—With fighting on the Western Front virtually at a standstill, the French nation concentrated on two points today—Chancellor Hitler's Reichstag speech and the direction from which Germany's military blow may come if the Fuehrer's overtures are rejected. French military circles bent their chief attention to the problem of guessing where the German "lightning" may strike, if and when it comes.

ROME, Oct. 6—A copy of Chancellor Hitler's Reichstag speech was handed to Premier Mussolini in Rome today, a few minutes before the Reichsfuehrer began to speak in Berlin, by German Ambassador Hans Georg Von Mackensen.

BERLIN, Oct. 6—Carefully avoiding the "threats" that Britain and France had predicted beyond hinting that the war in Europe might become a war of all the world, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler launched his "peace offensive" in a speech to the Reichstag today proposing an international conference and limitation of armaments to a "security basis."

Opening of full hostilities on the Western Front, he said, can only mean a loss of millions of lives, with eventual restoration of a Franco-German boundary marked not by flourishing cities but by ruined towns and "gigantic cemeteries."

He urged that guns be silenced at least long enough to allow the statesmen of Europe to meet in a sincere and far-reaching conference to settle problems of nationalities, minorities, raw materials, trade and economic matters and Germany's war-lost colonies in Africa.

The last, he said, "is the only claim that Germany has against England, and force of arms is not needed to solve this problem."

Wildly cheered by his 800-odd Nazi deputies gathered in the Kroll opera house, the Fuehrer concluded with a warning to Winston Churchill and others not to interpret his true offer as "weakness or cowardice."

"But if the Churchill clique is successful (in its alleged war aims), this will be my last declaration," Hitler said.

"Thereafter we will fight, and neither force of arms nor time itself will conquer Germany."

1918 Never Repeated
"November 1918 will never be repeated. Any hopes for the disintegration of our people are childish."

"Churchill may be convinced of Britain's victory, but I have not a second's doubt of Germany's victory."

"Fate will decide who is right. Only one thing is certain. There have never been two victors in the world's history—only the vanquished as the last war showed. May other nations and their leaders now speak. May those who see a better solution in war than in peace now reject my offer."

The Fuehrer mentioned Italy only once, in the course of reviewing Germany's friendly relations with the nations of southern and southeastern Europe, the Baltic nations and those on the North Sea.

Poland will never be restored as she was before Germany marched in to "eliminate" an impossible situation in which 10,000 German lives were lost and no less than (Continued on Page Two)

OBERLIN COLLEGE IN DEBATE OVER 'WAR' PETITION

OBERLIN, O., Oct. 6—A wide rift in Oberlin College faculty ranks appeared certain today after 25 instructors, professors and department heads signed a letter stating that "Borah, Coughlin, the Bund and the Communists" wanted this country to surrender to Hitler.

On Sept. 20, Dr. Ernest Hatch Wilkins, president of the famed liberal college, said that repeal of the arms embargo would cause sabotage in American industrial plants and would "enrage Germany."

The letter signed by the faculty members and published in the Oberlin Review, student newspaper, declared:

"This war seems certain to be long and bitter, but all its waste cannot be compared with the evil consequences of capitulating to Hitler."

"It is, such a surrender that Borah, Coughlin, the Bund and the Communists propose."

Leader of those signing the letter was F. B. Artz, history professor. Among the others signing were R. A. Jelliffe, novelist and head of the English department; Oscar Jaszi, head of the political science department; Marguerite Wadsworth, dean of women, and D. M. Love, secretary of the college.

BELLS FOR CHURCH PUT ON LAWN FOR DISPLAY

Three bells presented to Trinity Lutheran Church by the Rev. Jacob Barthelmas, South Court Street, retired pastor, have arrived and will be displayed in the front lawn of the church during the week end, the Rev. George L. Troutman, junior pastor of the church, announced Friday.

The bells weigh about two and a half tons. Work will be started Monday on installing the bells in the church tower. They were purchased from Moseley & Company, Inc., of Watervliet, N. Y., the same firm that placed the Foreman memorial chimera on the courthouse tower in 1926.

had received no report concerning the movement of any cutter. The cutter in the patrol service, it was explained, operates under the navy department.

A White House statement, released yesterday by presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early, said Admiral Erich Raeder, head of the German navy, told an American naval attaché in Berlin, Comdr. A. E. Schrader, the Iriquois would be sunk.

The sinking, the statement said, the admiral warned, "would be accomplished through a repetition of the circumstances which marked the loss of the steamship Athenia."

Implied By Allies

The German admiral's warning implied that the sinking would be done by one of the Allies. The German government has insisted that the sinking of the British liner Athenia, with 311 Americans on board, was ordered by the British admiralty to arouse American action against Germany on the assumption a German submarine was responsible.

"We can't imagine that any British, or French, or other ships would do such a thing as the dispatch states," Early said.

Early said the White House did not issue the statement for the "purpose of creating alarm" but felt the public should be advised. He also expressed doubt that many Americans would believe the report.

The Iriquois sailed from an Irish port Tuesday and is due to reach New York's port Wednesday.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The British admiralty today issued a statement expressing great surprise over the declaration of German Grand Admiral Erich Raeder that the American liner Iriquois was to be sunk "under circumstances which marked the loss of the S. S. Athenia."

Reading into this an implied charge that the British navy was planning to sink the Iriquois as a pretext to arouse American antipathy to Germany, the admiralty stated:

"Attention of the admiralty has been drawn to Berlin's suggestion that the Iriquois is to be sunk 'through a repetition of circumstances marking the loss of the Athenia.'"

"The Athenia was sunk by a U-boat plainly seen by responsible survivors. No British submarine was within several hundred miles."

"The fact that the German government made such a suggestion enables us again to realize and measure the criminal mentality of Nazi party leaders."

"But it is surprising that an officer of the imperial German navy like Admiral Raeder should demean his uniform to such baseness."

Prior to this statement, Raeder's implied allegation against Britain was termed in British circles as "an obvious canard."

HITLER CLAIMS BRITISH ISLANDS 'NOT ISOLATED'

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler sharply warned England today that the waters which surround the "tight little isle" are no longer protection against the horrors of war.

"This destructive struggle will not be confined to the continent of Europe," he said. "It will stretch out overseas. There are no isolated islands any more."

It was emphasized officially in Berlin that Hitler's reference to war "overseas" did not mean that he anticipated hostilities leaping across the Atlantic to the Americas.

Fuehrer Denies Any Weakening

694,000 Polish soldiers taken prisoners.

But, he said, Germany and Russia, "respectful of one another's viewpoint" and firmly determined never to wage war on one another, are ready and willing to be re-established and resettle the purely Polish population whenever the proper occasion arises to do so.

So far as the rest of Europe is concerned, he said, Germany demands new boundaries based on ethnographic, economic and national lines, a definite solution of the Jewish problem, a restoration of real European security, and the "clarification" of armaments to govern the use of war planes and poison gas, so that weapons may become instruments of protection and not of menace.

War Will Expand
Unless these problems are settled at a council table in an atmosphere of international peace and trust, the Fuehrer warned, the war on the Western Front will spread and expand until millions are dead and billions in property lost forever.

"This destructive struggle will not be confined to the continent of Europe," he said, "but will stretch out overseas. There are no isolated islands any more."

It was emphasized in official circles that this allusion to "islands" referred only to England, and did not mean that Hitler was predicting a war that would extend across the Atlantic to the Americas.

"Mutual Disarmament" was one of the measures suggested by the Fuehrer as he opened his long-awaited "peace offensive."

Hitler announced plans to create a new Polish state based on ethnologic, economic and national factors which would also safeguard German interests.

He proposed as well a solution of the Jewish problem.

Hitler reiterated his desire for friendly relations with England.

"Germany has no demands against England," he said, "with exception of the colonial problem—an issue that can be solved without resort to force."

ing or preparing troops specifically for service in this war.

"I am fully aware that a foreign country could commit acts of war on our country, such as bombing our industrial plants. I know that we would resist such acts of war. I know that we would authorize the use of all of our economic and financial powers and our indomitable navy to stop and punish such warlike action.

"I must say that I do not think any European nation would be so foolish as to commit such deliberate and unquestionable acts of war. But if they did, they would invite their own inevitable defeat."

HITLER CLAIMS BRITISH ISLANDS 'NOT ISOLATED'

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler sharply warned England today that the waters which surround the "tight little isle" are no longer protection against the horrors of war.

"This destructive struggle will not be confined to the continent of Europe," he said. "It will stretch out overseas. There are no isolated islands any more."

It was emphasized officially in Berlin that Hitler's reference to war "overseas" did not mean that he anticipated hostilities leaping across the Atlantic to the Americas.

Fuehrer Denies Any Weakening

694,000 Polish soldiers taken prisoners.

But, he said, Germany and Russia, "respectful of one another's viewpoint" and firmly determined never to wage war on one another, are ready and willing to be reasonable and settle the purely Polish population whenever the proper occasion arises to do so.

So far as the rest of Europe is concerned, he said, Germany demands new boundaries based on ethnographic, economic and national lines, a definite solution of the Jewish problem, a restoration of real European security, and the "clarification" of armaments to govern the use of war planes and poison gas, so that weapons may become instruments of protection and not of menace.

War Will Expand

Unless these problems are settled at a council table in an atmosphere of international peace and trust, the Fuehrer warned, the war on the Western Front will spread and expand until millions are dead and billions in property lost forever.

"This destructive struggle will not be confined to the continent of Europe," he said, "but will stretch out overseas. There are no isolated islands any more."

It was emphasized in official circles that this allusion to "islands" referred only to England, and did not mean that Hitler was predicting a war that would extend across the Atlantic to the Americas.

"Mutual Disarmament" was one of the measures suggested by the Fuehrer as he opened his long-awaited "peace offensive."

Hitler announced plans to create a new Polish state based on ethnographic, economic and national factors which would also safeguard German interests.

He proposed as well a solution of the Jewish problem.

Hitler reiterated his desire for friendly relations with England. "Germany has no demands against England," he said, "with exception of the colonial problem—an issue that can be solved without resort to force."

YANKEES MIGHT USE EL GOMEZ AGAINST GENE

Teams Travel West To Vie In Third Tilt; Hadley, Hildebrand Ready

By Lawton Carver
EN ROUTE TO CINCINNATI, Oct. 6 — Having out-played the Cincinnati Reds by a convincing and, what's more important, a decisive, margin in the first two games of the World Series, the New York Yankees today were convinced that this one will be a repetition of the sweeps in four straight scored by them from time to time in the past. That is the measure of these gents—that they don't figure in terms of winning a game, but rather in retaining the world championship in the shortest possible time. They are confident almost beyond reason, and quite enthusiastic about it all.

Thus they steam into the stronghold of the Reds for tomorrow's third game of this renewal, bent on making it four world triumphs in a row and the fourth, dating back to 1927 in which the Yankees have accomplished their conquest in a Blitzkrieg of four straight games. In fact, up to now they have won 16 games out of 19 played in the last four World Series, and for team effectiveness are setting records that won't ever be broken unless they do it.

Red Team Strong
The Reds are good — almost great in many respects, but with their best pitchers pitching and their best swingers swinging, the net results of their efforts to date is a pair of defeats, by 2 to 1 on Wednesday and 4 to 0 yesterday. This, mind you, in a series in which the Yankees started with the two men who made possible their previous three straight victories in the series uncertain of their effectiveness, one being Red Ruffing, who took the opener with a sore arm, the other Lefty Vernon Gomez who hasn't started yet and may not at all due to miseries in his side.

Or Gomez may be called on to oppose Rookie Gene Thompson, of the Reds in the third game tomorrow. The latter, a 13-game winner through the National League stretch, has been definitely nominated by Manager Bill McKeechne. Manager Joe McCarthy, will make a choice after a workout late today. If it's not Gomez, it will be Bump Hadley or Oral Hildebrand. This triumvirate make up his second line of pitching defense, behind Ruffing and Monte Pearson.

Mr. Thompson Young
It may be that the Reds can crack Gomez, Hadley or Hildebrand for some runs, but even if they do they have no assurance that the Yankees won't perform more or less similarly against their young Mr. Thompson. Quite logically, young Mr. Thompson is young, for one thing, and fresh out of the bushes around Columbia in the Sally League for another. He doesn't figure to succeed where Paul Derringer failed gallantly in the opener and Bucky Walters had his ears pinned back yesterday.

In the hitting department, the Reds also have failed to make a single extra base blow among their six scattered bingles. In the pitching department the Reds have allowed the Yanks to tuck a double by Babe Dahlgren and a triple by Charley Keller among the first game hits and doubles by Keller and Dahlgren and a home run by the latter among the blows of yesterday. Ival Goodman and Wally Berger both have muffed outfield catches that were difficult but not impossible, and the Reds' infield has missed at least four chances for double plays.

To the victor goes the spoils. In this case, they would anyhow. The two are Ceferino Garcia, Filipino middleweight who lifted Freddie Apostoli's 160-pound crown by technically knocking him out in the seventh round of a 10-round bout in New York, and his wife.

Alabama-Fordham Game To Headline Grid Card

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 — Scores of great football games will be on tap tomorrow as the big fellows swing into action against each other on all fronts.

Although there are dozens of intersectional tilts down for decision, the banner game of the day will be that between Fordham and Alabama, both of which are Rose Bowl conscripts.

We understand that Alabama is coming North loaded for bear but we have a hunch that Fordham will take them after one of the most bruising games ever seen anywhere.

We also like mighty Holy Cross to take a Louisiana State team that fell before Mississippi last week and we expect to see Carnegie Tech trim Temple which is nobody's push-over.

Both Cornell and Syracuse, two of the east's strongest, are claiming victory in advance but the fact is this one could go either way without the lifting of an eyebrow. We'll string with Cornell.

The first named team in each of the following setos is our choice for the other ranking games in the East: Pitt-West Virginia, Villanova-South Carolina, Brown-Amherst, Navy-Virginia, Penn State-Bucknell, Army-Centre, Dartmouth-Hampden Sydney, Harvard-Bates, Penn-LaFayette, Manhattan-St. Bonaventure, N. Y. U-Penn Military and Columbia over Yale in a wide open struggle.

The south also has some corking battles in sight with the Duke-Colgate affair drawing the spotlight. We must string with Duke but only after a hot fight. There are at least six all-star games down from decision in the Mid-west sector. One of the best of the day will find powerful Minnesota tackling the Nebraska eleven which played Indiana to a draw last week. We'll take the Gophers.

Offhand, you might say that Ohio State will win easily over Missouri but if so here's one that may fool you. We'll take O. S. to win by a shade because this Missouri team really showed something last week.

60,000 TO SEE BUCKEYES FACE MISSOURI TEAM

COLUMBUS, Oct. 6—The growling Tigers from Missouri were to invade Columbus today and work out in the stadium preparatory to tomorrow's football clash with Ohio State University.

Coach Don Faurot and his small but determined band of 35 were rated as underdogs but they were still expected to put on a good show in the inaugural of Ohio State's 50th football season.

The Buckeyes, who have spent a comparatively quiet week from a practice standpoint, were to go through a light workout this afternoon before retiring to a nearby country club until just before game time.

About 60,000 persons, including 30,000 high school juniors and seniors, were slated to witness the first battle between the two schools.

Black Chooses Starting Team

Howard Orr Named Acting Captain Of Tiger Crew As Greenfield McClain Invades City This Evening

Coach Roy Black of Circleville High School Friday, designated the starting lineup which will take the field tonight against Greenfield McClain in the Red and Black's first contest in the South Central Ohio League in the last 10 years. The Tiger school was a charter member of the league, but withdrew about 10 years ago, reentering this season.

The Tiger mentor will start his usual backfield of Smith at quarter, Jenkins at left half, Eby at right half and Bowsheer at fullback. He has two additional backfields ready for service at any time that they are needed.

Blocking Checked Over

The Tigers worked for about 90 minutes Thursday afternoon on defense and offensive blocking assignments. Black expressed satisfaction with the workout and declared after he sent the squad to the showers that he believed his boys capable of taking Greenfield. The McClain school defeated Circleville 75 to 6 last year with big Carl Grate running wild.

The Greenfield offensive is expected to be centered around Eldon Newland and Payne, halfbacks. The former does most of the power work, the kicking, passing and most of the running. Robinson plays quarterback and there is a possibility that Harold Schmidt, regular left tackle, may play fullback. Lefty Miller, regular fullback, is out for the season after an attack of appendicitis. Don Grate, regular end, has a broken arm and he, too, is through for the year. Miller and Grate are both basketball stars.

Game Stars at 8
The game begins at 8 o'clock, the contest being billed as booster night, proceeds going to help pay off the lighting system debt.

A mixup has developed in the officials handling the game. Faculty Manager Cress received a call Friday from Rodney Ross, Columbus, who said that he had not received confirmation of his contract so had made other arrangements. Ross told Cress that he would see that another official came to join Harley Pearce and Doc Donaldson in handling the contest.

In the other South Central Ohio game scheduled this evening Wilmington and Washington C. H. tangle on the Fayette County seat field.

That is the measure of these gents—that they don't figure in terms of winning a game, but rather in retaining the world championship in the shortest possible time. They are confident almost beyond reason, and quite enthusiastic about it all.

Thus they steam into the stronghold of the Reds for tomorrow's third game of this renewal, bent on making it four world triumphs in a row and the fourth, dating back to 1927 in which the Yankees have accomplished their conquest in a Blitzkrieg of four straight games. In fact, up to now they have won 16 games out of 19 played in the last four World Series, and for team effectiveness are setting records that won't ever be broken unless they do it.

Red Team Strong
The Reds are good — almost great in many respects, but with their best pitchers pitching and their best swingers swinging, the net results of their efforts to date is a pair of defeats, by 2 to 1 on Wednesday and 4 to 0 yesterday. This, mind you, in a series in which the Yankees started with the two men who made possible their previous three straight victories in the series uncertain of their effectiveness, one being Red Ruffing, who took the opener with a sore arm, the other Lefty Vernon Gomez who hasn't started yet and may not at all due to miseries in his side.

Or Gomez may be called on to oppose Rookie Gene Thompson, of the Reds in the third game tomorrow. The latter, a 13-game winner through the National League stretch, has been definitely nominated by Manager Bill McKeechne. Manager Joe McCarthy, will make a choice after a workout late today. If it's not Gomez, it will be Bump Hadley or Oral Hildebrand. This triumvirate make up his second line of pitching defense, behind Ruffing and Monte Pearson.

Mr. Thompson Young
It may be that the Reds can crack Gomez, Hadley or Hildebrand for some runs, but even if they do they have no assurance that the Yankees won't perform more or less similarly against their young Mr. Thompson. Quite logically, young Mr. Thompson is young, for one thing, and fresh out of the bushes around Columbia in the Sally League for another. He doesn't figure to succeed where Paul Derringer failed gallantly in the opener and Bucky Walters had his ears pinned back yesterday.

In the hitting department, the Reds also have failed to make a single extra base blow among their six scattered bingles. In the pitching department the Reds have allowed the Yanks to tuck a double by Babe Dahlgren and a triple by Charley Keller among the first game hits and doubles by Keller and Dahlgren and a home run by the latter among the blows of yesterday. Ival Goodman and Wally Berger both have muffed outfield catches that were difficult but not impossible, and the Reds' infield has missed at least four chances for double plays.

To the Victor Goes—

TO the victor goes the spoils. In this case, they would anyhow. The two are Ceferino Garcia, Filipino middleweight who lifted Freddie Apostoli's 160-pound crown by technically knocking him out in the seventh round of a 10-round bout in New York, and his wife.

Alabama-Fordham Game To Headline Grid Card

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 — Scores of great football games will be on tap tomorrow as the big fellows swing into action against each other on all fronts.

Although there are dozens of intersectional tilts down for decision, the banner game of the day will be that between Fordham and Alabama, both of which are Rose Bowl conscious.

We understand that Alabama is coming North loaded for bear but we have a hunch that Fordham will take them after one of the most bruising games ever seen anywhere.

We also like mighty Holy Cross to take a Louisiana State team that fell before Mississippi last week and we expect to see Carnegie Tech trim Temple which is nobody's push-over.

Both Cornell and Syracuse, two of the east's strongest, are claiming victory in advance but the fact is this one could go either way without the lifting of an eyebrow. We'll string with Cornell.

The first named team in each of the following setos is our choice for the other ranking games in the East: Pitt-West Virginia, Villanova-South Carolina, Brown-Amherst, Navy-Virginia, Penn State-Bucknell, Army-Centre, Dartmouth-Hampden Sydney, Harvard-Bates, Penn-LaFayette, Manhattan-St. Bonaventure, N. Y. U-Penn Military and Columbia over Yale in a wide open struggle.

The south also has some corking battles in sight with the Duke-Colgate affair drawing the spotlight. We must string with Duke but only after a hot fight.

There are at least six all-star games down from decision in the Mid-west sector. One of the best of the day will find powerful Minnesota tackling the Nebraska eleven which played Indiana to a draw last week. We'll take the Gophers.

Offhand, you might say that Ohio State will win easily over Missouri but if so here's one that may fool you. We'll take O. S. to win by a shade because this Missouri team really showed something last week.

60,000 TO SEE BUCKEYES FACE MISSOURI TEAM

COLUMBUS, Oct. 6—The growling Tigers from Missouri were to invade Columbus today and work out in the stadium preparatory to tomorrow's football clash with Ohio State University.

Coach Don Faurot and his small but determined band of 35 were rated as underdogs but they were still expected to put on a good show in the inaugural of Ohio State's 50th football season.

The Buckeyes, who have spent a comparatively quiet week from a practice standpoint, were to go through a light workout this afternoon before retiring to a nearby country club until just before game time.

About 60,000 persons, including 30,000 high school juniors and seniors, were slated to witness the first battle between the two schools.

Black Chooses Starting Team

Howard Orr Named Acting Captain Of Tiger Crew As Greenfield McClain Invades City This Evening

Coach Roy Black of Circleville High School, Friday, designated the starting lineup which will take the field tonight against Greenfield McClain in the Red and Black's first contest in the South Central Ohio League in the last 10 years. The Tiger school was a charter member of the league, but withdrew about 10 years ago, reentering this season.

The Tiger mentor will start his usual backfield of Smith at quarter, Jenkins at left half, Eby at right half and Bowsher at fullback. He has two additional backfields ready for service at any time that they are needed.

Blocking Checked Over

The Tigers worked for about 90 minutes Thursday afternoon on defense and offensive blocking assignments. Black expressed satisfaction with the work and declared after he sent the squad to the showers that he believed his boys capable of taking Greenfield. The McClain school defeated Circleville 75 to 6 last year with big Carl Grate running wild.

The Greenfield offensive is expected to be centered around Eldon Newland and Payne, halfbacks. The former does most of the power work, the kicking, passing and most of the running. Robinson plays quarterback and there is a possibility that Harold Schmidt, regular left tackle, may play fullback. Lefty Miller, regular fullback, is out for the season after an attack of appendicitis. Don Grate, regular end, has a broken arm and he, too, is through for the year. Miller and Grate are both basketball stars.

Game Stars at 8

The game begins at 8 o'clock, the contest being billed as booster night, proceeds going to help pay off the lighting system debt.

A mixup has developed in the officials handling the game. Faculty Manager Cress received a call Friday from Rodney Ross, Columbus, who said that he had not received confirmation of his contract so had made other arrangements. Ross told Cress that he would see that another official came to join Harley Pearce and Doc Donaldson in handling the contest.

In the other South Central Ohio game scheduled this evening Wilmington and Washington C. H. tangle on the Fayette County seat field.

MONTE PEARSON TOO GOOD, SAYS WILL M'KECHNIE

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 — Bill McKeechne, defiant manager of the Reds, told the story of the second World Series game in one crisp sentence. "Just too much Pearson," said Bill, as he stepped from under a shower towelling vigorously. "But," he added, "don't think we're through by any means. Look around at these boys. They don't look discouraged, do they? We've pulled out of tougher holes than this during the season and we may repeat now."

"I'm going to start Junior Thompson in the next game at home. He's the best young pitcher that's come up to our league in several years and I think he can stop them."

Over in the Yankee dressing room, Monte Pearson was trying to look modest after his two-hit performance. Monte insisted that he didn't know he had a no-hitter in sight when Lombardi hit a fast ball for a single in the eighth.

COLONELS TAKE 'LITTLE SERIES' FROM ROCHESTER

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 6—The Louisville Colonels of the American Association were the "Little World Series" champions today, the four runs they pushed across in the 11th inning last night halting the underdog Rochester Red Wings in the deciding game, 7 to 3. The victory gave the Colonels the best four out of the seven games played. Four singles and a fielder's choice spelled victory for Louisville.

COAL ADDED TO WHITE ELEPHANT AUCTION ITEMS

Dealers Donate Three Tons To Help Playground Campaign

SALE PLANNED SATURDAY

Clothing, Furniture, Other Items Available For Big Event

Three tons of coal have been donated by Circleville dealers for the White Elephant Sale to be held in Hill's Implement Store, East Franklin Street, Saturday afternoon, to boost the municipal playground fund.

George Griffith, a member of the committee in charge of the sale, announced Friday that the coal was donated by R. P. Enderlin, John Neuding and Helvering & Scharenberg.

Another unusual item to be sold is a horse donated by B. W. Young of Pickaway Township. The proceeds from the sale of the horse will be divided by Mr. Young and the playground committee.

A large collection of items of every kind and description will be offered in the auction. Articles donated include furniture, all kinds of clothing, lamps, shoes, dishes, vases, etc.

The sale begins at 1:30 p. m. Saturday. C. G. Chaffin and Orren Updyke will be auctioneers.

IRON LUNG BABY LIVES, BUT ITS MOTHER IS DEAD

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Mrs. Gertrude Epstein, 22, infantile paralysis victim who gave birth to a baby daughter while in an "iron lung" in Mount Sinai Hospital, died today.

Physicians said death was due to heart paralysis.

The infant was said to be "doing well."

Birth of the six and one-half pound child yesterday was accomplished under circumstances believed never before to have been duplicated.

The young mother, a "clinic case" and wife of an employee in an auto wrecking yard, was stricken suddenly with the dread disease shortly before her child was to be born.

Soon after special "iron lung" equipment was rushed to the hospital from the home of Fred Snite, Jr., world's most famous infantile paralysis sufferer, experts put together a makeshift respirator in which the young mother could breathe while doctors worked over her.

Working feverishly against time, five physicians successfully deliv-

COAL ADDED TO WHITE ELEPHANT AUCTION ITEMS

Dealers Donate Three Tons
To Help Playground
Campaign

SALE PLANNED SATURDAY

Clothing, Furniture, Other Items Available For Big Event

Three tons of coal have been donated by Circleville dealers for the White Elephant Sale to be held in Hill's Implement Store, East Franklin Street, Saturday afternoon, to boost the municipal playground fund.

George Griffith, a member of the committee in charge of the sale, announced Friday that the coal was donated by R. P. Enderlin, John Neuding and Helvering & Schenberg.

Another unusual item to be sold is a horse donated by B. W. Young of Pickaway Township. The proceeds from the sale of the horse will be divided by Mr. Young and the playground committee.

A large collection of items of every kind and description will be offered in the auction. Articles donated include furniture, all kinds of clothing, lamps, shoes, dishes, vases, etc.

The sale begins at 1:30 p. m. Saturday, C. G. Chalfin and Orren Updyke will be auctioneers.

IRON LUNG BABY LIVES, BUT ITS MOTHER IS DEAD

CHICAGO, Oct. 6—Mrs. Gertrude Epstein, 22, infantile paralysis victim who gave birth to a baby daughter while in an "iron lung," in Mount Sinai Hospital, died today.

Physicians said death was due to heart paralysis.

The infant was said to be "doing well."

Birth of the six and one-half pound child yesterday was accomplished under circumstances believed never before to have been duplicated.

The young mother, a "clinic case" and wife of an employee in an auto wrecking yard, was stricken suddenly with the dread disease shortly before her child was to be born.

Soon after special "iron lung" equipment was rushed to the hospital from the home of Fred Snite, Jr., world's most famous infantile paralysis sufferer, experts put together a makeshift respirator in which the young mother could breathe while doctors worked over her.

Working feverishly against time, five physicians successfully deliv-

might have died. Yesterday's operation was believed to have been the first of its kind on record.

ered Mrs. Epstein of a tiny daughter. The operation took just five minutes.

Doctors declared today that but for the fortunate circumstance complete respirator equipment was available at the suburban Snite home, both mother and child

60 PERCENT OF WHEAT SEEDING COMPLETED NOW

Suitable Weather In Next Week May Help End
Fall Work

HEAVY RAINFALL NEEDED

200 Cattle Averaging 1,450
Pounds To Be Sold On New York Mart

Approximately 60 percent of the wheat seeding in Pickaway County has been completed to date and barring unusual weather conditions practically all seeding will be completed by the middle of next week.

This estimate was made by Harry J. Briggs, service manager of the Farm Bureau. "All farmers will have their seeding done and be ready for the Pumpkin Show," Mr. Briggs said.

Farmers are hoping for heavy rains after their seeding is completed.

Big Stock Shipment Goes To New York

The largest single shipment of market cattle ever listed from a Pickaway County cattle raiser will go through the Pickaway Livestock Yards Saturday, Briggs announced.

Mr. Briggs said 200 cattle weighing about 1,450 pounds each will be shipped to New York. There will be eleven carloads of cattle. The stock is owned by Ward Wolf, Salt Creek Township.

TRIO CONVICTED OF CRIMES SENT TO INSTITUTIONS

Two young men and a youth were taken to institutions Thursday and Friday to begin serving sentences imposed in Common Pleas and Juvenile Courts.

Alvis Williams, 23, of Orient Route 2, was taken to Ohio Penitentiary Thursday to start serving a sentence of one to 20 years for passing a forged check. He was taken to the penitentiary by Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Adkins took Hamilton Holbert, 23, of Mt. Sterling Route 3, to the Ohio State Reformatory, Friday, to begin a similar sentence imposed for forgery.

Robert Shaffer, 14, Lancaster Pike, was taken to the Boys Indus-

AMERICANS JOIN CANADIAN FORCE

Six Sign With Squadron To Be Similar To Famed Escadrille

TORONTO, Oct. 6 — A new air fighting squadron similar to the LaFayette Escadrille of World War fame was being formed today by 15 veterans of the Royal Air Force, six of them United States citizens, who were rejected by both England and France for service in the new war but conditionally accepted by the French.

The volunteers, most of them past 40 years and with 500 to 1500 hours in the air each, will be sent to France as soon as they pass physical tests.

The United States citizens were listed as J. B. Remington, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; L. R. Sherman, Milford, Mass.; Daniel C. Mangan and King Whyte, Cleveland and J. B. O'Hara and W. N. Purvis, Detroit.

trial School, Lancaster, Friday, by Frank Goff, juvenile officer, and Robert Armstrong, deputy sheriff. The youth was sentenced to the institution for auto theft. The sentence was imposed Thursday afternoon.

60 PERCENT OF WHEAT SEEDING COMPLETED NOW

Suitable Weather In Next Week May Help End Fall Work

HEAVY RAINFALL NEEDED

200 Cattle Averaging 1,450 Pounds To Be Sold On New York Mart

Approximately 60 percent of the wheat seeding in Pickaway County has been completed to date and barring unusual weather conditions practically all seeding will be completed by the middle of next week.

This estimate was made by Harry J. Briggs, service manager of the Farm Bureau. "All farmers will have their seeding done and be ready for the Pumpkin Show," Mr. Briggs said.

Farmers are hoping for heavy rains after their seeding is completed.

Big Stock Shipment Goes To New York

The largest single shipment of market cattle ever listed from a Pickaway County cattle raiser will go through the Pickaway Live-stock Yards Saturday, Briggs announced.

Mr. Briggs said 200 cattle weighing about 1,450 pounds each will be shipped to New York. There will be eleven carloads of cattle. The stock is owned by Ward Wolf, Saltcreek Township.

TRIO CONVICTED OF CRIMES SENT TO INSTITUTIONS

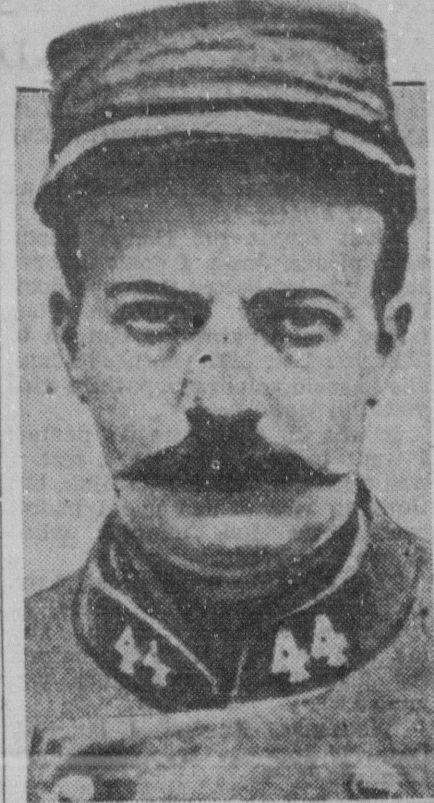

Two young men and a youth were taken to institutions Thursday and Friday to begin serving sentences imposed in Common Pleas and Juvenile Courts.

Alvis Williams, 23, of Orient Route 2, was taken to Ohio Penitentiary Thursday to start serving a sentence of one to 20 years for passing a forged check. He was taken to the penitentiary by Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Adkins took Hamilton Holbert, 23, of Mt. Sterling Route 3, to the Ohio State Reformatory, Friday, to begin a similar sentence imposed for forgery.

Robert Shaffer, 14, Lancaster Pike, was taken to the Boys Indus-

Maginot His Baby

To this humble poll, Private Andre Maginot (pictured during the First World War) goes the credit for the Maginot Line, the French wall on the frontier with Germany. He conceived and designed the great line of fortifications which France believes makes her invulnerable to land attack.

AMERICANS JOIN CANADIAN FORCE

Six Sign With Squadron To Be Similar To Famed Escadrille

TORONTO, Oct. 6 — A new air fighting squadron, similar to the LaFayette Escadrille of World War fame was being formed today by 15 veterans of the Royal Air Force, six of them United States citizens, who were rejected by both England and France for service in the new war but conditionally accepted by the French.

The volunteers, most of them past 40 years and with 500 to 1500 hours in the air each, will be sent to France as soon as they pass physical tests.

The United States citizens were listed as J. B. Remington, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; L. R. Sherman, Milford, Mass.; Daniel C. Mangan and King Whyte, Cleveland and J. B. O'Hara and W. N. Purvis, Detroit.

trial School, Lancaster, Friday, by Frank Goff, juvenile officer, and Robert Armstrong, deputy sheriff. The youth was sentenced to the institution for auto theft. The sentence was imposed Thursday afternoon.

MR. DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Effective with the broadcast of Sunday, October 8, the format of Mr. District Attorney, heard weekly at 7:30 p. m., over the NBC-Blue network, will undergo a change which gives busy Arlene Francis an important, permanent role on the half hour show.

Beginning next week, more accent will be placed on the feminine angle, heretofore missing in this racket-smashing program, with Miss Francis getting the part of "Miss Rand, secretary to the D. A. Instead of being a disembodied voice, as in the past, when the role was played by somebody else, the secretary now will be changed into a wisecracking Myrna Loy type, who helps her boss solve crimes while scattering sex appeal over a program heretofore mainly masculine in content. Miss Francis' initial appearance in the new secretarial role will be in a script dealing with the cleaners' racket which the D. A. uncovers when a cleaning and dyeing syndicate preys on a small neighborhood tailor. Jay Jostyn has the title role and Ed Byron directs.

GOODMAN GUEST STAR

Instituting a new guest star policy with a swing twist, Benny Goodman will start playing host to the instrumental and vocal swing specialists of America, commencing Saturday, Oct. 7, 10 p. m., EST, NBC-Red network, when he introduces Mildred Bailey, "Queen of the Blues," as his first visitor.

The wife of Red Norvo, the band-leader, with whose musicians she has made many appearances in cabarets and on the stages of the country's leading motion picture theaters, Mildred Bailey is related to music on her brother's side. ### TO REPRESENTATIVE CLAYPOOL

SIR: Your announcement during the last week that a gigantic flood control project is being lined up for Deer Creek has caused considerable discussion in Pickaway County circles. Many believe the project to be an excellent undertaking, IF it ever becomes a reality. Pickaway County was told for many, many years that a postoffice would be erected; finally it was built. They were told time after time that the stretch of road just west of Circleville on Route 22 would be raised above flood level of the Scioto River; finally this, too, was started. And they have been told for many, many years that a Scioto River flood control project would soon be started, but this still is only in the discussion stage. I hope that you put forth all the effort possible to make this flood control program a possibility. Pickaway County would ever owe you a debt of gratitude if something could be done to end the great losses farmers in the Valley are forced to take year after year when the river's muddy overflow wrecks corn and other crops.

TO SPORTS FANS

FOLK: I feel certain that all of you who go to the high school football games are pleased that a lighting system has been installed which makes night games possible. Well here is your chance to show how much you appreciate the lighting system. This evening Greenfield McClain's team invades the Circleville field. The night is being ticketed as "Booster Night" with the net proceeds of the game going into the fund being raised to pay off the persons who put up necessary money to provide for the construction. You could attend the game and by your admission fee help to pay off the debt. McClain brings a good team to Circleville in an effort to get a good start in the South Central Ohio League. The Circleville Tigers are just as determined to win as are the McClain boys, so a good game is promised. Eight o'clock is game time.

TO THE CORN HUSKERS

FRIENDS: A husking bee is being arranged for Pickaway County this fall, the location and date not yet determined, but I'd advise you to contact F. K. Blair, county farm extension agent, to inform him that you intend to compete. The more persons entering the competition the better the husking event will be and the more interest

World At A Glance

AS A 1940 Republican presidential possibility Alf M. Landon's prospects undoubtedly have been greatly improved by overseas warfare. I hear this on all hands. I don't hear his election so much predicted. Guessing quite generally that President Roosevelt will be Democratically renominated and there doesn't seem to be a great deal even of Republican confidence that Landon can beat him—not from present indications anyway; conditions may change, of course. But, reckoning as of today, it is unmistakably the judgment of politicians on both sides, in Washington, that the G. O. P.'s best bet is the Kansan.

HIS LOSERSHIP AN ASSET

Alf's behavior since his presidential defeat in 1936 surely has endeared him to the country. There never was a better loser. Soon after he was licked international complications began to develop—and, "Politics ends at the water's edge" immediately became his motto. He not only found no fault with the administration's policies; he boosted for them. For instance, he lent an enthusiastic hand toward promoting Rooseveltian plans to cement Pan-American relations. He helped intelligently, too. There wasn't a better influence than his at the last inter-American meeting in Lima, Peru—though he hadn't had a bit of experience as a diplomat or as a negotiator with the Latins. It was just because he's internationally likable—and sensible. Our southern neighbors don't take to the average "Yanqui" at all readily. They say that most of us are brusque, somewhat overbearing, "anti-sympatico." But they fell for Landon on short notice. I get a lot of their newspapers. White that Lima confab was going on they simply bulged with editorial praises of "Ahlf, Emmy Landon"—that's the way they pronounce it, with the accent on the last syllable.

Alf also was an un-critical as he could be, of the White House's world war attitude, at the recent bi-partisan discussion at the executive mansion, on the edge of the congressional session's opening. He could have said things calculated to disrupt the non-partisanship of the occasion but he didn't do it. The "water's edge," he still insisted, is his limit.

SLIGHTLY CRYPTIC

The Kansan did tell a story (not at the official conference but in an extra-official chat with Washington newspapermen) that was a trifle cryptic.

It likewise was an awful chestnut. It was that ancient yarn about the farmer who was going into town to get drunk — "and (Oh) how I hate it!" Some thought they discerned a gentle hint that Alf regards neutrality modification as a trip into town for a few drinks (something "short of war," as F. D. puts it) but not as a regular toot, which the farmer so dreaded.

Being a Kansan, Alf naturally is a prohibitionist, who probably considers a few drings as preliminary to a regular saturnalia. However, he didn't say so, in so many words; at the "water's edge" he's too good an American non-partisan to so express himself otherwise.

PROHIBITION?

And the prohibition question? Prohibition was one of Uncle Sam's war babies.

Dry folks already are suggesting that now, with war once more looming in the offing, is a good juncture at which to re-stimulate it. The Distilled Spirits Institute organ mentions it apprehensively. Encourage war, to get back to prohibition!

there will be stirred up. Cash prizes are being offered in one of the classes and the right to compete in the state event will be the honor in the other. Farm officials are looking for a suitable field from which the corn may be husked. If you know of any suitable location why don't you get in touch with Mr. Blair? Pickaway County has produced several state champions and it is possible that this year others will come to the front. Our husking bee should be as big and as successful as that in any other county. Thanks to Mr. Blair and members of his committee for undertaking the project.

TO MERCHANTS

BUSINESSMEN: Have you planned your window displays for the Pumpkin Show? Remember, the Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants Association are offering three cash prizes of $25, $10 and $5 for the best decorated windows from the standpoint of sales appeal. Your decorated windows not only mean more interest in your store and merchandise, but add to the quality of the Pumpkin Show. Plan special displays for the interior of your store during the celebration. Every year there are some merchants who contend the show brings them no business. Others say that the show period is one of their busiest seasons. The answer lies with the merchant.

TO CIRCLEVILLE FOLK

RESIDENTS: Saturday afternoon is the White Elephant Sale at Hill's Implement Store to boost the playground fund. Scores of articles of all kinds and description will be auctioned. Attend the sale and give your support to the playground campaign. Remember all of the funds from the sale will go to the playground fund for purchasing land in the northend of the city and equipping the grounds. Many have not made their contributions to solicitors who have been covering districts of the city for funds. If the campaign is to be a success it must have the support of all citizens.

TO CAMERA FANS

FRIENDS: Did you notice the recent announcement of a meeting to be held in the Steadom studio on the night of October 10? The purpose of the meeting is to organize a camera club in Circleville. There are scores of Circleville persons who are interested in photography. They should have an active organization. Other nearby cities have camera clubs and many interesting meetings and activities are conducted. Plan to attend the meeting and boost plans for the organization.

TO THE SERVICE DEPARTMENT

EMPLOYEES: Circleville motorists are certainly pleased to see repairs being made on Court Street. Those black top patches on a street improved only a few years ago did not add to the appearance of the street, one of the busiest highways in Ohio. When you finish the Court Street improvements I suggest that you repair the sunken places in Watt Street just east of Court Street. The Watt Street work has been called to your attention several times, but the improvements have never been made. Keeping the paved streets in the city in repair is equally as important as improvements in alleys and some of the black top streets.

What Children Do Not Inherit

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A MOST valuable book is called YOU AND HEREDITY, by Abram Scheinfeld and Dr. Morton D. Schweitzer (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York). The authors point out that the effect of heredity has been discussed at great length about animals, but very little has been written which could be understood by the layman about heredity in man—in other words, you.

I take the opportunity of excerpting certain interesting features of the volume.

What we do not inherit: Our children are not affected by any change that takes place within our body cells. Imagine that you have a large, life-size plastic statue of yourself, and inside of it is a small, hermetically sealed container filled with millions of microscopic replicas of this statue. Suppose, then, that you pull out of shape and enlarge the nose of the big statue. Could that, by any means you could conceive, automatically enlarge all the noses of all the millions of little statues inside?

They have bound the feet of Chinese women for centuries, and yet all Chinese female babies are born with normal feet.

You cannot improve your child's mind by educating yourself. Your children would be born with exactly the same mental equipment even if you have acquired a string of degrees from Yale to Oxford.

The age of the male parent makes no difference in the health of the children. A man of 95 is still capable of producing virile children and there are records of men who did. The children are the same in their hereditary factors as if the father were 16.

Pass on Accomplishments? "Can I pass onto my child any of the accomplishments or improvements I have made in myself?" The answer is "Yes," you can pass on a great deal, but not by heredity—by training and environment.

Animals not of the same variety, but of related kind, can produce offspring. All human beings, however, are fertile with one another. The smallest pygmy and the tallest Nordic could produce a perfectly normal child, because all human beings regardless of race, type, color or any other classifications are, as members of the same species, compatible with one another.

At the World's Fair they have a machine that solves all the hereditary problems for a young couple contemplating marriage. A small figure having the characteristics of the mother—blue eyes, brown hair, etc.—is shown, and another shows the characteristics of the father. The punch the button beneath these and soon there is a picture of what the child will look like. Thus, you can eliminate all chance.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

WHEN JOSIE referred to the letter her mother had received, I didn't know what to say. I couldn't make a guess about that. It was beyond me. The rest was simple enough. Neal Peake ought to be shot, I thought grimly. If Coral Easton wouldn't wait for him until his practice was established so that he could take care of her, he was better off without her. And as for Josie's friend, Alan Murray; as long as Mrs. Peake was on their side that would straighten itself out. Josie, only 23, could afford to wait a year or even more.

Josie was looking at me. I had to say something. "My dear," I said slowly, weighing each word that I might be sure it was the right one. "I have no idea what the letter could have held that it should disturb your mother. But remember this, very often we go to a man for understanding when we hate to lay our burdens on another woman's shoulders. That may be the reason your mother confided in Neal and not in you."

"I wouldn't worry about it any more. You and Alan are young. You can afford to wait a year or so longer. And with your mother's love and understanding behind you, I am sure it will all come right some day."

"Mother said almost those same words to me, Sally, but it's so hard to wait." She drew a long sigh as she spoke. Then she smiled a little. "I feel like a selfish pig," she confessed. "You've been awfully good, Sally. You've listened to my tale of woe and you've straightened out my room. I'm going to try to be more sensible, more like you."

"Good grief," I cried in astonishment. "Don't try to be like me. Try to be like your mother. From all Rhoda's told me she really is an example to follow."

"Rhoda's told me a lot about you, too," she said half shyly. "I know lots about you. I've wanted to know you for ages."

"Please, Josie," I begged, "don't say any more." I really was embarrassed. I could feel the hot color burning my face. I could well imagine the things Rhoda had said to her about me. She used to say them to me until I got mad one day and cut her short.

I don't know what in the world I've done that anyone can find to praise. I was sent to school. There was money enough for that. The dean of the school found me a good position before I was graduated, and I've been there ever since. One must, to hold down a position like mine; but never have I done anything which any other girl couldn't do as well or better.

"Just forget the things Rhoda said, please, Josie. I don't deserve them one bit better than she does. But remember this: I'm your friend, and whatever I can do to help you I will. If you need someone to scold you or sympathize with you, I'm right here."

It was on that note we parted. I went to my room for a rest. I was tired and wanted to think, but thinking was denied me. I hadn't been there five minutes when Rhoda appeared.

"You certainly are the limit," she exclaimed. "You come here to spend your vacation with Dunc and me, and by the clock I've seen you for just five minutes since you landed."

"Nonsense, Rhoda," I laughed. "And if it were true, you have Duncan—"

"Yes, and Duncan's waiting for us in the lounge. So march your self off that bed. We're going out—and this time you're going with us."

"In all this fog?" I groaned, glancing out the window where water dripped disconsolately from the branches of a cherry tree outside.

"Yes, in all this fog! Fog is grand to walk in. We're going on the moors."

"I wish I'd gone to Shinn Pond," I grumbled. "I could rest there whenever I wanted to."

"And you can rest here, but not now. Come on, jump into your slacks and a sweater set. Hurry!"

It wasn't any use combating Rhoda when she was in that mood. I changed my clothes and went out to the lounge where Duncan was patiently waiting.

"We'll get lost, I know we will," I growled as we stepped off the terrace into the soft gray mist which hemmed us in.

"We will not," laughed Duncan. "I know every inch of these moors."

And we didn't.

At five o'clock we were back at Hill House and I was forced by sheer honesty to admit that I had enjoyed the walk.

To me, city-bred, that fog was a marvelous thing, even though we did wander into a flock of sheep that scared me half to death. Duncan certainly spoke the truth when he said he knew those moors. It seemed to me that he had a speaking acquaintance with every bush, tree and rock that we saw. We gathered dripping bunches of sweet wild roses, fronds of sweet fern and gnarled branches of bayberry.

We came home with our hair decorated with crystals, our sweaters beaded with pearls, and our feet soaking wet, all from the fog. We had appetites that would have shamed a tribe of old-time cannibals, and again honesty compels me to state that I ate just twice as much as I intended.

How could I help it? We had broiled lobsters for dinner that night and blueberry shortcake with whipped cream. We didn't dress for dinner. No one did. It was one of Mrs. Peake's rules that when the fog was "in," as they say, we could eat dinner in slacks and sweaters.

I think there is something a little crazing in a thick fog. At least, it seemed to affect us all that way. We ate dinner, then wandered around the grounds in that ghostly gray vapor, laughing and calling to each other like a crowd of spooks. We even played hide and seek, all of us. That is, all but Mrs. Peake, Mrs. Rutherford and Dr. Paul. He stayed with his mother to give Pauline a chance to have some air and exercise.

She and I hid together once, and I asked her how her mother was feeling.

She gripped my arm so hard it hurt for a long time. "She's much better. Paul says she'll be all right in a day or two. But—Sally, I want to go home. I'm scared to stay here another minute. I wouldn't even cross the lawn alone in this fog."

Her voice sounded strained and I realized that the shock of learning her mother had been poisoned was almost too much for the girl.

"Nonsense," I said briskly. "You are just being silly when you give way to such foolish fears. I believe that sometime we'll find out that that poison was a mistake. I do not believe it was ever intended for you folks."

"Not for Paul?" She gripped my arm again.

For an instant I hesitated. I've said before that I don't much like Dr. Paul. Maybe it was intended for him. I couldn't say. But I made my mind up quickly. A white lie might lessen Pauline's nervous tension.

"No," I said stoutly, "not for Dr. Paul."

"Oh, I hope so," she murmured. "Then the whole gang, like a bunch of wildcats, was on us. There wasn't time for one other word and I was glad."

Into the lounge we streamed, but our gaiety over, the others gradually drifted away until only Rhoda, Duncan, Neal, Pauline and I sat beside the fire.

"I think I'll go over to the cottage," Pauline said. "I don't want to leave mother alone too long with Paul. She misses me if I'm long away. Will you walk over with me, Neal? I—I don't want to go alone."

"Of course I will. Wait for me here, you folks. I want to discuss something when I come back."

Rhoda's high spirits seemed to have deserted her for the moment, and we sat silent until Neal returned.

"The fog is thicker than ever," he announced. "There are three foghorns going now. We only hear that third one when the wind is right, which it isn't very often."

We all listened. A long melancholy note was the friend or foe which had been with us all day. A higher, shriller tone was the second foghorn; and the third I had to strain my ears to hear. A dull, heavy note, like thunder in the distance. I was glad I was comfortably on land rather than on sea on such a night.

"I wanted to tell you folk," Neal began, "that I spoke to Paul about calling in the police. He is much against it. He insists that it will delay his mother's recovery and hurt our business. But he has agreed that if anything further occurs we will do as you suggest."

"Why so serious?" demanded Josie's voice. "You look like a bunch of conspirators. Have you seen mother lately? She isn't in the house."

STARS SAY—

For Friday, October 6

ACCORDING to certain lunar and mutual configurations, there may be difficulties or disagreements with superiors, employers of those in authority on this day, but other planetary figures stimulate and stabilize the mental outlook and make safe the judgment of these matters as they arise. There might be legal phases or threatened loss of employment, but in any event there is definite promise of a welcome and lucrative change. Depend on your own insight.

Those whose birthday it is need not be surprised if some disagreeable or difficult situation arises during the year, particularly in relations with employers, superiors, authorities or perhaps partners. This may be amicably adjusted as the judgment is practical, sound and the general outlook on harassing predicaments hopeful. It may be the means of precipitating a rather unlooked-for change, journey or reorganization

AS A 1940 Republican presidential possibility Alf M. Landon's prospects undoubtedly have been greatly improved by overseas warfare. I hear this on all hands. I don't hear his election so much predicted. Guessing quite generally that President Roosevelt will be Democratically renominated and there doesn't seem to be a great deal even of Republican confidence that Landon can beat him—not from present indications anyway; conditions may change, of course. But, reckoning as of today, it unmistakably is the judgment of politicians on both sides, in Washington, that the G. O. P.'s best bet is the Kansan.

Rather oddly Alf's Republican chances clearly were multiplied several times over by F. D., when he invited the former to sit in at his bi-partisan White House conference on the eve of the war-time special session of congress.

This turned the limelight upon the Sunflower statesman. And what the limelight revealed was a preeminently pleasing personality. To be sure, other Republican conferees were in attendance. However, Alf, by reason of his titular G. O. P. leadership, was conspicuous. He certainly got more favorable advertising out of that conference than any other conferee present, the president himself perhaps excepted.

HIS LOSERSHIP AN ASSET

Alf's behavior since his presidential defeat in 1936 surely has endeared him to the country. There never was a better loser. Soon after he was licked international complications began to develop—and, "Politics ends at the water's edge" immediately became his motto. He not only found no fault with the administration's policies; he boosted for them.

For instance, he lent an enthusiastic hand toward promoting Rooseveltian plans to cement Pan-American relations. He helped intelligently, too. There wasn't a better influence than his at the last inter-American meeting in Lima, Peru—though he hadn't had a bit of experience as a diplomat or as a negotiator with the Latins. It was just because he's internationally likable—and sensible. Our southern neighbors don't take to the average "Yanqui" at all readily. They say that most of us are brusque, somewhat overbearing, "anti-sympatico." But they fell for Landon on short notice. I get a lot of their newspapers. White that Lima confab was going on they simply blubbed with editorial praises of "Alf, Emmy Landon"—that's the way they pronounce it, with the accent on the last syllable.

Alf also was an un-critical as he could be, of the White House's world war attitude, at the recent bi-partisan discussion at the executive mansion, on the edge of the congressional session's opening. He could have said things calculated to disrupt the non-partisanship of the occasion but he didn't do it. The "water's edge," he still insisted, is his limit.

SLIGHTLY CRYPTIC

The Kansan did tell a story (not at the official conference but in an extra-official chat with Washington newspapermen) that was a trifle cryptic.

It likewise was an awful chestnut. It was that ancient yarn about the farmer who was going into town to get drunk — "and (Oh!) how I hate it!" Some thought they discerned a gentle hint that Alf regards neutrality modification as a trip into town for a few drinks (something "short of war," as F. D. puts it) but not as a regular toot, which the farmer so dreaded.

Being a Kansan, Alf naturally is a prohibitionist, who probably considers a few drinks as preliminary to a regular saturnalia. However, he didn't say so, in so many words; at the "water's edge"—he's tood good an American non-partisan so to express himself otherwise.

PROHIBITION?

And the prohibition question? Prohibition was one of Uncle Sam's war babies.

Dry folks already are suggesting that now, with war once more looming in the offing, is a good juncture at which to re-stimulate it. The Distilled Spirits Institute's organ mentions it apprehensively. Encourage war, to get back to prohibition!

"I'm so glad I caught you, Doctor. I want a thorough examination!"

What Children Do Not Inherit

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A MOST valuable book is called YOU AND HEREDITY, by Amram Scheinfeld and Dr. Morton D. Schweitzer (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York). The authors point out that the effect of heredity has been discussed at great length about animals, but very little has been written which could be understood by the layman about heredity in man—in other words, you.

I take the opportunity of excerpting certain interesting features of the volume.

What we do not inherit: Our children are not affected by any change that takes place within our body cells. Imagine that you have a large, life-size plastic statue of yourself, and inside of it is a small, hermetically sealed container filled with millions of microscopic replicas of this statue. Suppose, then, that you pull out of shape and enlarge the nose of the big statue. Could that, by any means you could conceive, automatically enlarge all the noses of all the millions of little statues inside?

They have bound the feet of Chinese women for centuries, and yet all Chinese female babies are born with normal feet.

You cannot improve your child's mind by educating yourself. Your children would be born with exactly the same mental equipment even if you have acquired a string of degrees from Yale to Oxford.

The age of the male parent makes no difference in the health of the children. A man of 95 is still capable of producing virile children and there are records of men who did. The children are the same in their hereditary factors as if the father were 16.

Pass on Accomplishments?

"Can I pass onto my child any of the accomplishments or improvements I have made in myself?" The answer is "Yes," you can pass on a great deal, but not by heredity—by training and environment.

Animals not of the same variety, but of related kind, can produce offspring, but the offspring are sterile. The most familiar case is the horse and the donkey, which produce the mule, but the mule can produce no offspring. All human beings, however, are fertile with one another. The smallest pygmy and the tallest Nordic could produce a perfectly normal child, because all human beings regardless of race, type, color or any other classifications are, as members of the same species, compatible with one another.

At the World's Fair they have a machine that solves all the hereditary problems for a young couple contemplating marriage. A small figure having the characteristics of the mother—blue eyes, brown hair, etc.—is shown, and another shows the characteristics of the father. Punch the button beneath these and soon there is a picture of what the child will look like. Thus, you can eliminate all chance.

Shadow Over Hill House

By ELLIOTT FILLION

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

STORY
Guests at Hill House, a New England summer resort, are amazed when Dr. Paul Rutherford tells them his mother has been poisoned by a small drink of whiskey he thinks was intended for him. Among them are Sally Gordon, spending her first vacation there; her close friends, Rhoda and her fiancé, Duncan; Dr. Paul's sister, Pauline; Coral Easton, Bruce Orton, Joseph Barry and Dr. Neal Peake and Josie Peake, children of Mrs. Peake, the proprietor. Not long after Josie discovers that someone has ransacked her room, she confides to Sally that she is worried and tells her all about "the spite fence" erected near Hill House by Mrs. Peake. Josie is friendly with Alan Murray, who lives at Hill House, and that infuriates her brother, Neal. He likes Coral Easton, for whom Josie has no use.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

WHEN JOSIE referred to the letter her mother had received, I didn't know what to say. I couldn't make a guess about that. It was beyond me. The rest was simple enough. Neal Peake ought to be shot, I thought grimly. If Coral Easton wouldn't wait for him until his practice was established so that he could take care of her, he was better off without her. And as for Josie's friend, Alan Murray, as long as Mrs. Peake was on their side that would straighten itself out. Josie, only 23, could afford to wait a year or even more.

Josie was looking at me. I had to say something. "My dear," I said slowly, weighing each word that I might be sure it was the right one. "I have no idea what the letter could have held that it should so disturb your mother. But remember this, very often we go to a man for understanding when we hate to lay our burdens on another woman's shoulders. That may be the reason your mother confided in Neal and not in you."

"I wouldn't worry about it any more. You and Alan are young. You can afford to wait a year or so longer. And with your mother's love and understanding behind you, I am sure it will all come right some day."

"Mother said almost those same words to me, Sally, but it's so hard to wait." She drew a long sigh as she spoke. Then she smiled a little. "I feel like a selfish pig," she confessed. "You've been awfully good, Sally. You've listened to my tale of woe and you've straightened out my room. I'm going to try to be more sensible, more like you."

"Good grief," I cried in astonishment. "Don't try to be like me. Try to be like your mother. From all Rhoda's told me she really is an example to follow."

"Rhoda's told me a lot about you, too," she said half shyly. "I know lots about you. I've wanted to know you for ages."

"Please, Josie," I begged, "don't say any more." I really was embarrassed. I could feel the hot color burning my face. I could well imagine the things Rhoda had said to her about me. She used to say them to me until I got mad one day and cut her short.

I don't know what in the world I have done that anyone can find to praise. I was sent to school. There was money enough for that. The dean of the school found me a good position before I was graduated, and I've been there ever since. I've worked hard, of course. One must, to hold down a position like mine; but never have I done anything

Today's Horoscope
If your birthday is on this date you may be threatened with some legal trouble in the near future. It may sever an old association. You may also experience some business difficulties, but do worry too much, as you will overcome the latter. The child born on this date will be sensitive, but fond of sensation. He or she will also be ambitious, but must cultivate energy and initiative in order to succeed.

which any other girl couldn't do as well or better.

"Just forget the things Rhoda said, please, Josie. I don't deserve them one bit better than she does. But remember this: I'm your friend, and whatever I can do to help you I will. If you need someone to scold you or sympathize with you, I'm right here."

It was on that note we parted. I went to my room for a rest. I was tired and wanted to think, but thinking was denied me. I hadn't been there five minutes when Rhoda appeared.

"You certainly are the limit," she exclaimed. "You come here to spend your vacation with Dunc and me, and by the clock I've seen you for just five minutes since you landed."

"Nonsense, Rhoda," I laughed. "And if it were true, you have Duncan—"

"Yes, and Duncan's waiting for us in the lounge. So march yourself off that bed. We're going out—and this time you're going with us."

"In all this fog?" I groaned, glancing out the window where water dripped disconsolately from the branches of a cherry tree outside.

"Yes, in all this fog! Fog is grand to walk in. We're going on the moors."

"I wish I'd gone to Shinn Pond," I grumbled. "I could rest there whenever I wanted to."

"And you can rest here, but not now. Come on, jump into your slacks and a sweater set. Hurry!"

"We will not," I said, combating Rhoda when she was in that mood. I changed my clothes and went out to the lounge where Duncan was patiently waiting.

"We'll get lost, I know we will," I growled as we stepped off the terrace into the soft gray mist which hemmed us in.

"We will not," I laughed. Duncan. "I know every inch of these moors."

And we didn't.

At five o'clock we were back at Hill House and I was forced by sheer honesty to admit that I had enjoyed the walk.

To me, city-bred, that fog was a marvelous thing, even though we did wander into a flock of sheep that scared me half to death. Duncan certainly spoke the truth when he said he knew those moors. It seemed to me that he had a speaking acquaintance with every bush, tree and rock that we saw. We gathered dripping bunches of sweet fern and roses, fronds of sweet fern and gnarled branches of bayberry.

We came home with our hair decorated with crystals, our sweaters beaded with pearls, and our feet soaking wet, all from the fog. We had appetites that would have shamed a tribe of old-time cannibals, and again honesty compels me to state that I ate just twice as much as I intended.

How could I help it? We had broiled lobsters for dinner that night and blueberry shortcake with whipped cream. We didn't dress for dinner. No one did. It was one of Mrs. Peake's rules that when the fog was "in," as they say, we could eat dinner in slacks and sweaters.

I think there is something a little crazing in a thick fog. At least, it seemed to affect us all that way. We ate dinner, then wandered around the grounds in that ghostly gray vapor, laughing and calling to each other like a crowd of spooks. We even played hide and seek, all of us. That, is all but Mrs. Peake, Mrs. Rutherford and Dr. Paul. He stayed with his mother to give Pauline a chance to have some air and exercise.

She and I hid together once, and I asked her how her mother was feeling.

She gripped my arm so hard it hurt for a long time. "She's much better. Paul says she'll be all right in a day or two. But—Sally, I want to go home. I'm scared to stay here another minute. I wouldn't even cross the lawn alone in this fog."

Her voice sounded strained and I realized that the shock of learning her mother had been poisoned was almost too much for the girl.

"Nonsense," I said briskly. "You are just being silly when you give way to such foolish fears. I believe that sometime we'll find out that that poison was a mistake. I do not believe it was ever intended for you folks."

"Not for Paul?" She gripped my arm again.

For an instant I hesitated. I've said before that I don't much like Dr. Paul. Maybe it was intended for him. I couldn't say. But I made my mind up quickly. A white lie might lessen Pauline's nervous tension.

"No," I said stoutly, "not for Dr. Paul."

"Oh, I hope so," she murmured. "I hope so."

Then the whole gang, like a bunch of wildcats, was on us. There wasn't time for one other word and I was glad.

Into the lounge we streamed but, our gaiety over, the others gradually drifted away until only Rhoda, Duncan, Neal, Pauline and I sat beside the fire.

"I think I'll go over to the cottage," Pauline said. "I don't want to leave mother alone too long with Paul. She misses me. If I'm long away, will you walk over with me, Neal? I—I don't want to go alone."

"Of course I will. Wait for me here, you folks, I want to discuss something when I come back."

Rhoda's high spirits seemed to have deserted her for the moment, and we sat silent until Neal returned.

"The fog is thicker than ever," he announced. "There are three foghorns going now. We only hear that third one when the wind is right, which isn't very often."

We all listened. A long melancholy note was the friend or foe which had been with us all day. A higher, shriller tone was the second foghorn, and the third I had to strain my ears to hear. A dull, heavy note, like thunder in the distance, was glad I was comfortable on land rather than on sea on such a night.

"I wanted to tell you folk," Neal began, "that I spoke to Paul about calling in the police. He is much against it. He insists that it will delay his mother's recovery and hurt our business. But he has agreed that if anything further occurs we will do as you suggest."

"Why so serious?" demanded Josie's voice. "You look like a bunch of conspirators. Have you seen mother lately? She isn't in the house."

For Friday, October 6

ACCORDING to certain lunar and mutual configurations, there may be difficulties or disagreements with superiors, employers of those in authority on this day, but other planetary figures stimulate and stabilize the mental outlook and make safe the judgment of these matters as they arise. There might be legal phases or threatened loss of employment, but in any event there is definite promise of a welcome and lucrative change. Depend on your own insight.

Those whose birthday it is need not be surprised if some disagreeable or difficult situation arises during the year, particularly in relations with employers, superiors, authorities or perhaps partners. This may be amicably adjusted as the judgment is practical, sound and the general outlook on harassing predicaments hopeful. It may be the means of precipitating a rather unlooked-for change, journey or reorganization of the affairs, and this is a welcome and promising way out.

A child born on this day may have original talents, with good judgment and practical ideas of steadfastness and responsibility. It may do better on its own than with partners or employers, even domestic partners.

Two Members of D. U. V. Given Honor in District

Fall Conference Is Conducted In Fredericktown

Mrs. E. L. Tolbert of the Circleville tent of Daughters of Union Veterans was elected junior vice president of the Sixth District at the fall conference Thursday in Fredericktown. Mrs. Hattie Pickens was another Circleville member honored at the convention, being named flagbearer, No. 3.

Mrs. Tolbert, who has been district chaplain for some time, planned and conducted a beautiful memorial service which was presented at the conference with the help of 19 officers of the Circleville tent. Mrs. Tolbert is guide in Circleville D. U. V.

Other officers attending the conference were Mrs. Frank Webb, Mrs. Frank Rader, Mrs. James Carpenter, Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer, Mrs. D. C. Duffy, Mrs. George E. Hammel, Mrs. Cora Coffland, Mrs. L. E. Miller, Mrs. Mouser Crayne, Mrs. James Trimmer, Mrs. E. S. Neuding, Miss Adah Hammel, Mrs. E. L. Price, Mrs. Irene Newton, Mrs. Ruth Gearhart, Mrs. James Pierce, Miss Anna Kirkwood and Mrs. Charles Stofor.

CAC Dance
Brad Hunt and his ten piece orchestra, featuring Peggy Neenan, songstress, have been secured by the dance committee of the Circleville Athletic Club for the annual series of Pumpkin Show dances which will be October 18, 19, 20 and 21 in the club auditorium.

For the last five weeks Mr. Hunt and his orchestra have been playing in the Ionia Room, Desher-Wallick Hotel, Columbus, where they have been drawing record crowds. Prior to this they played an extended engagement at Ruggles Beach in the Vacation Land of Ohio.

Hunt's music is new and different and is called Mega-Muted music, for the distinctive quality of its arrangement. In addition to Miss Neenan, stellar singer, Bartone Bill Renner and Billy Carmichael do "scat" ditties and novelties.

Members of the dance committee of the club, who have seen and heard this orchestra as well as several other leading bands, feel that in securing Brad Hunt they will be able to furnish one of the best bands they have ever had for their annual dances.

Methodist Church Day
Mrs. M. E. Noggle opened the meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church Thursday with a solo, "In-a My Heart", a spiritual. The Prayer Circle was led in the opening prayer by Mrs. W. C. Baum, program leader for the day.

Mrs. Fred Nicholas led the devotion, using the subject "The Way We Walk". After group singing, Mrs. C. F. Bowman read the poem, "Dedication".

Stressing the importance of prayer, Mrs. S. G. Rader led the Stewardship Candle Lighting service.

Mrs. Charles Gerhardt reviewed the second chapter of the study book on "Women in the way in Africa". This chapter was written by a native African woman.

"Greater America," a poem, was read by Mrs. W. T. Uhm. Mrs. Nicholas read a story, "The Mixing Bowl". "The Power of Prayer" by Bishop Springer was read by Mrs. Gerhardt in closing the program.

About 55 were served the luncheon at noon prepared by the Ladies' Aid society of the church.

Miss Mattie Gearhart presided at the business meeting of this group in the absence of the president and vice president. Tentative plans were discussed for the meals which the society will serve during the Pumpkin Show.

Mrs. C. C. Watts, president of the Women's Home Missionary Society, announced that the fall district meeting of the Chillicothe group would be Tuesday, October 31, in Athens. She also announced that the annual meeting of Ohio Conference of the W.H.M.S. would

Fall Conference Is Conducted In Fredericktown

Mrs. E. L. Tolbert of the Circleville tent of Daughters of Union Veterans was elected junior vice president of the Sixth District at the fall conference Thursday in Fredericktown. Mrs. Hattie Pickens was another Circleville member honored at the convention, being named flagbearer, No. 3.

Mrs. Tolbert, who has been district chaplain for some time, planned and conducted a beautiful memorial service which was presented at the conference with the help of 19 officers of the Circleville tent. Mrs. Tolbert is guide in Circleville D. U. V.

Other officers attending the conference were Mrs. Frank Webb, Mrs. Frank Rader, Mrs. James Carpenter, Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer, Mrs. D. C. Duffy, Mrs. George E. Hammel, Mrs. Cora Coffland, Mrs. L. E. Miller, Mrs. Mouser Crayne, Mrs. James Trimmer, Mrs. E. S. Neuding, Miss Adah Hammel, Mrs. E. L. Price, Mrs. Irene Newton, Mrs. Ruth Gearhart, Mrs. James Pierce, Miss Anna Kirkwood and Mrs. Charles Stofor.

CAC Dance
Brad Hunt and his ten piece orchestra, featuring Peggy Neenan, songstress, have been secured by the dance committee of the Circleville Athletic Club for the annual series of Pumpkin Show dances which will be October 18, 19, 20 and 21 in the club auditorium.

For the last five weeks Mr. Hunt and his orchestra have been playing in the Ionian Room, Desher-Wallick Hotel, Columbus, where they have been drawing record crowds. Prior to this they played an extended engagement at Ruggles Beach in the Vacation Land of Ohio.

Hunt's music is new and different and is called Mega-Muted music, for the distinctive quality of its arrangement. In addition to Miss Neenan, stellar singer, Bartone Bill Renner and Billy Carmichael do "scat" ditties and novelties.

Members of the dance committee of the club, who have seen and heard this orchestra as well as several other leading bands, feel that in securing Brad Hunt they will be able to furnish one of the best bands they have ever had for their annual dances.

Methodist Church Day
Mrs. M. E. Noggle opened the meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church Thursday with a solo, "In a My Heart", a spiritual. The Prayer Circle was led in the opening prayer by Mrs. W. C. Baum, program leader for the day.

Mrs. Fred Nicholas led the devotions, using the subject "The Way We Walk". After group singing, Mrs. C. F. Bowman read the poem, "Dedication".

Stressing the importance of prayer, Mrs. S. G. Rader led the Stewardship Candle Lighting service.

Mrs. Charles Gerhardt reviewed the second chapter of the study book on "Women in the way in Africa". This chapter was written by a native African woman.

"Greater America," a poem, was read by Mrs. W. T. Uhm. Mrs. Nicholas read a story, "The Mixing Bowl", "The Power of Prayer" by Bishop Springer was read by Mrs. Gerhardt in closing the program.

About 55 were served the luncheon at noon prepared by the Ladies' Aid society of the church.

Miss Mattie Gearhart presided at the business meeting of this group in the absence of the president and vice president. Tentative plans were discussed for the meals which the society will serve during the Pumpkin Show.

Mrs. C. C. Watts, president of the Women's Home Missionary Society, announced that the fall district meeting of the Chillicothe group would be Tuesday, October 31, in Athens. She also announced that the annual meeting of Ohio Conference of the W.H.M.S. would be held in Dayton October 26-29. Mrs. George Pontius led the devotions in opening the meeting and Mrs. Leon Van Vleet and two of her younger pupils furnished piano music during the program. The Rev. C. F. Bowman reviewed the chapter, "The Investment of the year," of the study book, "Home-land Harvest". A brief history of the Spiritual Life department was presented by Mrs. Fred Nicholas. Mrs. C. C. Watts was in charge of the leadership training study on stewardship.

The society decided for the supply work for the year to clothe a girl at the Ethel Harpst Home at Cedar town, Ga.

Atlanta Bridge Club
Mrs. Leslie Canup was an added guest Thursday afternoon when Mrs. George Betts entertained the members of her bridge club at her home near Atlanta. Four tables were in progress and at the close of play, prizes for scores were given Mrs. McKinley Kirk and Mrs. Ward Dean.

Tallies and refreshments were in keeping with Halloween. Mrs. Betts was assisted in serving by Mrs. Pearl Ater.

Other club members present were Mrs. Omar Creighton, Mrs. Charles Drake, Mrs. Ulen McGhee, Mrs. Wendell Evans, Mrs. Van Meter Hulise of Williamsport, Mrs. Stella Dawson of Clarksburg, Mrs. Edward Schiering, Mrs. Paul Peck, Mrs. John Farmer, Jr., Mrs. Royal Hamman and Mrs. George McGhee of the Atlanta community.

Mrs. Drake will entertain the club in November.

U. B. Missionary Society
An interesting program on the subject, "The World, a Christian Community", was presented Thursday evening at the meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Brethren Church at the home of Mrs. M. C. Kirkwood, South Court Street, Mrs. Ralph Long, chairman of literature, was leader for the evening and her program was instructive and entertaining including a graphic chalk talk.

Short talks on the topic were presented by Mrs. John Kerns, Mrs. John Stevenson, Mrs. A. N. Gruesser, Mrs. A. H. Morris, Mrs. James Trimmer and Miss Gladys Noggle.

A duet, "My Mother's Bible", was sung by Mrs. Russell Jones and Miss Carrie LaMaster.

Mrs. Trimmer presided during the business hour.

Mrs. Kirkwood, assisted by Miss Lucille Kirkwood and Miss Polly Jane Kerns, served lunch at the close of the session.

COUNTY BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT TO BE HELD IN ATLANTA GYMNASIUM

NEW STRUCTURE RENTED TO CAGE MEET FOR $125

Competition To Be Staged Outside Circleville For First Time

PRICE QUESTION VITAL

Schools To Take Vacation For Thanksgiving On Nov. 23 and 24

The Pickaway County basketball tournament will be held at the Atlanta, Perry Township school, this season.

This decision was made Thursday evening at a meeting of Pickaway County school superintendents held in the county school offices. Tournament dates are February 23, 24, 29 and March 1 and 2.

Leslie Canup, superintendent of Atlanta school, notified the superintendents that the Perry Township Board of Education was willing to have the gymnasium used for the county event. The price was set at $125. C. A. Higley, superintendent of Ashville school and manager of the tournament, had been notified by the Circleville Athletic Club that the price for its gymnasium would be $200, the same as last year. There was considerable controversy over the C. A. C. price last season and for a time it appeared the tournament would be taken from Circleville.

Capacity 800-1,000 George D. McDowell, superintendent of the county school, said the seating capacity of the Atlanta gymnasium ranged between 800 and 1,000. Portable bleachers will be placed on the stage to provide more room. It is believed the Atlanta gymnasium would have about as large a seating capacity as the Circleville Athletic Club gymnasium.

This will be the first time that the tournament has not been held in Circleville.

Mr. McDowell said the county basketball schedule was discussed and is being prepared by his office for distribution within a few days. The schedule starts Nov. 17.

Holiday Changed The Thanksgiving holiday in the schools will be November 23 and 24 to comply with the change in the date made by President Roosevelt.

The superintendents drew for space in the county school exhibit and regulations were distributed.

The superintendents met Thursday due to Ohio High School Day being observed at Ohio State University next Saturday, the original date set for their meeting.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA The thrilling, tender story of youthful dreams... triumph against a mighty city's heartbreak! The sensitive story of a boy's tragic conflict... and a girl's joyous love! The mighty story of romance... in the life of a musician who became a prize-ring killer!

It's "Golden Boy," the internationally famous stage success by Clifford Odets, brought to the Cliftona theatre screen on Sunday by Columbia Pictures. Directed by Rouben Mamoulian and starring Barbara Stanwyck, Adolphe Menjou and William Holden, the stirring new drama which has been hailed as one of the most gripping stories of raging conflict and warm romance ever captured by the camera!

Holden, in the title role, was chosen for the part after a year-long, nation-wide search in which more than 3,000 candidates were interviewed and screen-tested. That the carefulness with which Columbia sought a screen newcomer and potential star is justified has been amply proven by advance reports.

Others in the stellar cast are Joseph Calleia, Sam Levene, Lee Cobb, Edward Brophy, William Strauss, Frank Jenks, Beatrice Blinn, Don Beddoe and Harry Tyler.

The average lawyer never grows rich. After 17 years' practice he is likely to earn around $3,629 annually.

Jersey Principal on Trial

OUSTER proceedings were brought against Edwin Van Keuran (left), Flemington, N. J. high school principal, as an outgrowth of an educational trip to Washington. One charge was that he forced girl pupils to sit up all night in their hotel because they stayed out late. Martha Everhardt (right), one of the pupils, said the girls "punished him on the return trip by musing him up and smearing his face with lipstick."

BOARD TALKS OF LAST MEETING TO NEW LOCATION TO PICK CROP GROUP EXHIBIT STOCK MEMBERS LISTED

The Junior Fair board met Thursday evening in the county school offices to clear away final details for the exhibit, a part of the annual Pumpkin Show.

A discussion was conducted on the possibility of moving the livestock exhibit to a location where more space could be provided. No decisions were reached. This exhibit in past years has been placed back of the Armory. Due to the necessity of being near water and having a suitable place for feed it is difficult to select other locations.

Entry blanks and premium lists were distributed to members of the organization for distribution to exhibitors.

HORSE PULLING TO FEATURE BIG FAIRFIELD FAIR

LANCASTER, Ohio, Oct. 6.—One of the features Wednesday, Oct. 11, the opening day of The Fairfield County Fair, Lancaster, will again be The Boy & Girl Junior Horse Pulling Contests with thirty odd great pulling teams entered. All teams will be driven by boys and girls from eight years of age to 18 from many different cities in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and Michigan. $700 in prize money going to the winners.

This contest will be held under the jurisdiction of The Horse Pulling Association of Ohio, Inc. and the Fairfield County Agricultural Society, starting promptly at 1:30 p. m.

Last year this type of event attracted the largest opening day crowd in the history of The Fairfield County Fair, and from the interest already manifested this feature will probably again be one of the most spectacular opening day events ever booked.

This contest will be the last of the Horse Pulling Association of Ohio 1939 series of fourteen contests, thirteen of same which was held in Ohio and one in Indiana.

TIME ADDED TO BERGDOLL TERM BY ARMY COURT

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Three years more at hard labor added to his original five-year term by an army court martial, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the notorious draft dodger, was hidden today behind the grim walls of Castle William, the military fortress in New York harbor, while his attorney considered the possibility of an appeal.

Bergdoll was convicted of escape and desertion by a military court of 13 army officers, which, however, dropped the conspiracy charge against him.

To Lecture Here

THE Rev. Ralph E. Baney, above, will lecture Monday evening at the Methodist Church on "Behind the Scenes in Nazi Germany." The lecture is scheduled at 7:45 o'clock. Mr. Baney is shown in the picture in Munich on the occasion of Mussolini's visit to Hitler. He snapped many forbidden pictures, which he shows here, by manipulating his camera through a small hole in his pocket.

DRIVER OF NEW CAR FORFEITS BOND IN COURT

Donald Stewart, 27, of 303 Pennsylvania Avenue, Wellston, forfeited a bond of $115 in Mayor W. B. Cady's court, Thursday night, on a charge of driving when intoxicated.

Stewart was arrested early Thursday after a new car he was driving from Columbus to Wellston for a dealer collided with a truck in Court Street south of the Learned a lot about farming along with its tough spots by being a good listener to one who is not making his farming much of a paying proposition. Said that grain farming without the cows, calves and pigs is a losing venture and that's the whole truth. Knows this for sure he said because he's tried it. Selling out and quitting at least until a place can be found where livestock can be kept. And the mention of cows reminds us that Bill Newton now at the O. S. U. for the second year making a veterinarian out of himself, was out in Jersey somewhere in New York City territory this summer, assisting in a dairy where 1500 cows were kept. And that number of cows would be a big boost to any creamery. We are hoping Bill tells us all about how such a large dairy is conducted.

The announcement of the marriage of Miss Lanman and Elmer Yeates came as a surprise to most of our people. The newly weds, have rented from Mrs. Julia Weaver her dwelling by the M. E. Church recently vacated by Harry

POLISH PASTOR FOUND GUILTY

Camden Jury Decides That Preacher Plotted To Kill Daughter

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 6.—Death in the electric chair loomed today for the Rev. Walter Dworecki, 49, a Polish Baptist evangelist whom a jury found guilty after 12 hours deliberation of arranging to have his daughter, Wanda, 17, strangled in a plot to collect the insurance on her life.

"I'm not guilty," Dworecki cried
